Dear Hank:

May I thank you, on behalf of all the members of the Foreign Policy Seminar, for the excellent briefings and discussions we had on March 15 at your offices in Langley. The program arranged by [redacted] of your training office was exactly what we wanted, and I was impressed that she was able to bring us into contact with some of your most senior people, not least yourself. The luncheon hosted by Dr. Sayre Stevens was a good way for seminar members to get to know FEI alumni from your agency, and the briefings provided by him, and by John McMahon [redacted] gave us a very good insight into the functions of CIA and the Intelligence Community. You added the political perspective, which is a key element in the role of intelligence in our constitutional system, and we appreciated the warmth with which you greeted us and shared your views.

Please give my sincere thanks to all who made this such an outstanding visit. Seminar members considered it a highlight of the whole week's program.

Sincerely,

Donald E. Nuechterlein
